

CLASS OF '98

YEARBOOK

Head Boy's Report

By the time you're reading this you will have attempted, and hopefully, cleared the final hurdle of secondary education - the behemoth Bursary. Although this has been our primary reason for being at school there has of course been a lot more going on.

The highlight of any seventh form year is the school ball and ours was no exception. A brilliant night was enjoyed by all, and a night that carried well on into the next day.

There have also been countless other events such as Production, Sports day and the like, where a strong seventh form contingent has always managed to add some flare and joculariry.

Not to be found on the school calendar are all those weird and wacky moments that simply cannot be put into print but have been enjoyed, and will most certainly be remembered. These things are what make the seventh form year and bring people together, whilst also making us realise that some of you are just plain bonkers.

I would like to thank Claire and Malcolm for being such supportive deputies, the seventh form executives for your valuable input and also to all of the people who have been on various committees for a lot of behind-the-scene work.

Thanks must also go to my fellow Head Student.

Not only do we depart from each other but we also leave some special staff. To Mr O'Connor, Mr Wood, Mrs Rose, Mrs Elder, Mr Smith and Mrs Treweek, I thank you for your dedication and hard work as well as all the other staff that have made our five years of secondary school very enjoyable.

Good luck to everyone in the future with your respective paths and hopefully we'll see each other sometime out in the big wide world.

With that, I'd like to depart with a splendid wee quote:

"Eat, Drink and be Merry!"

Head Girl's Report

It's a very frightening thought that I am sitting down and putting pen to paper in reflection of my seventh form year. Scary because this year has passed by so quickly, and suddenly I've got Bursary starting in a week and a half, and scary because my years of being in the school system are all but over. That's not a bad thing mind you, it's something that I've looked forward to for years, yet now it's here, I'm finding it a little intimidating. We all now have to move away from safety, love, somewhere where we are entirely comfortable and know exactly what is expected of us from day to day, to something entirely new.

What intrigues me, is that when you're a third former, seventh formers seem so big, confident and mature without a care in the world. The problem is that now that I'm here, I don't feel all that big and I've certainly got plenty of cares. My interpretation of seventh form was always that it was a social year where the school work took a backseat. Unfortunately I'm only just beginning to realise that perhaps that's not the way it should have worked.

I can honestly say the seventh form has gone by faster than any year I've ever had, It's been hectic and I know that I've learnt a lot. I wouldn't want to do it all again, however, it's too draining for that. Seventh form year is what you make it I think, whether you place your emphasis in the classroom, on the sportsfield or around the town, you'll reap the rewards in your chosen area.

In retrospect perhaps my focus could have been more directed into the classroom, but there's such a lot to do and so little time.

Anna Egan

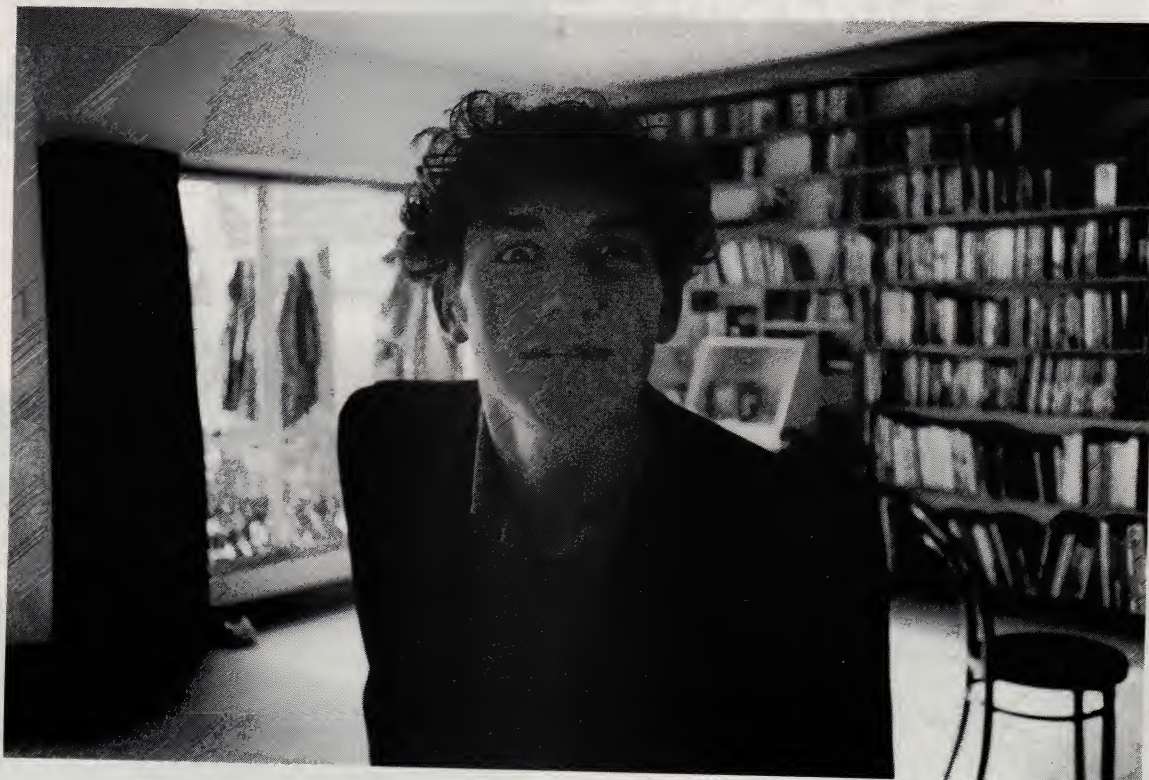

Deputy Head Boy's Report

a.k.a Maggi Man Malcolm

Malcolm Ian Rutherford, the only person I know who actually likes Pizza flavoured two minute noodles. The pungent smell choking the Common Room was enough to put us all off. Not only is Malcolm extremely skilled with a slimy pot and a chunk of dried flour and water, he can also play the cornet and trumpet pretty well. Although he was very quiet about this, he is in the NZ Youth Brass Band for the second year running and has done well in solos, quartets and Brass and Concert band throughout his whole school career. His highlights this year I believe would be wearing high heels in public and his trip to Codfish Island to work with the Kakapos.

But what we will remember most about our deputy head boy is his awesome trumpet playing in the Dark Afterglow (his jazz group), his 'friendly' greetings of kicking you in the butt and pushing you into the bushes, other people, into walls etc etc - (thanks Malcs), his ability to get along with people and mostly his constant jovial manner. I hope the seventh form has enjoyed having him as one of their leaders as much as I have as one of my grooviest friends.

Claire Wilson

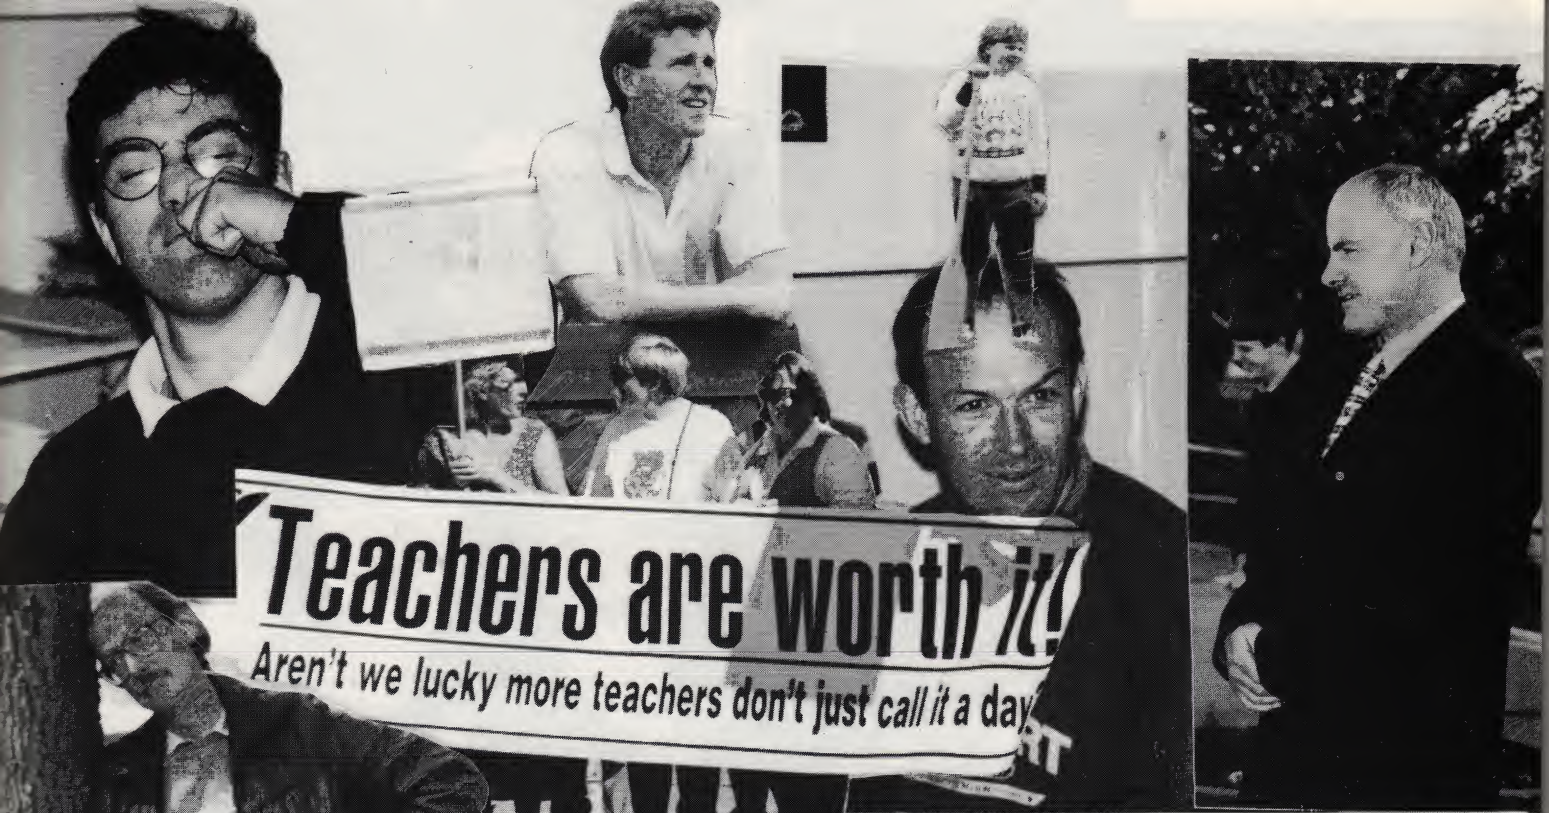

Deputy Head Girl's Report

Claire Jenny Margaret Wilson is a girl who was born a while ago and is growing older by the day. Her hair used to be long and fiery but now, although still fiery, is short. Claire Jenny Margaret Wilson has been involved in speech, violin, singing and acting for quite some time and most members of the public who know who know Claire Jenny Margaret Wilson think of her as quiet, polite, studious and pleasant girl. She can be all of these things if the occasion requires them but most of the time she is nothing of the sort. Claire Jenny Margaret Wilson is someone who is not often bored. The chair race down the common room (which I won fair and square) and her crazy dancing at random moments during the day, show this best. Claire Jenny Margaret Wilson also doesn't like to see other people being bored and has organised and participated in Lip-synchs and a Talentless quest (I think the excellent Ballet should have won). She also breaks the boredom on the odd Saturday by having things like Backwards Fondue parties (burnt cheese fondue). Another thing she does to break the boredom is participating in things such as basketball, volleyball, rowing, theatre sports, Ancora and other stuff I can't think of. In the School Productions Claire Jenny Margaret Wilson has acted as Mum (Mrs McAfee) and as a daughter (Casilda). Claire Jenny Margaret Wilson has a very unique taste in music. This follows in the footsteps of her brother Chris. Beck, King Looser, Stereo Lab, Mink, Bressa Greeting Cake, Beck again just to name a few. Other masterpieces such as The Sound Of Music also rank highly in her music collection. Claire Jenny Margaret Wilson also has a marvellous taste in clothes and her famous silver antennae, Beck T-shirt and orange bed-spread pants sum this up nicely. Claire has been a good friend of mine for a long time. She always brightens up the common room and I think she has been a great Deputy Head Girl.

The Gondoliers - 1998 Major Production

Needless to say, the highlight of Malcolm Rutherford's seventh form year (apart from mooning Sarah Ruddenklau) was in the Production. Every performance was an absolute pleasure, as night after night his boyhood dream of wearing knee high, high heeled boots and tights came true over and over again. Those four nights were great, aye Malcolm?

Apart from Malcolm's exciting role as the womanising power freak, The Grand Inquisitor, the production had unique appeal. When many of us in the cast took a glimpse at the score that we were to memorise word for word, note for note, we were rather perplexed to say the least. The thought of performing a century old 'light opera' only compounded our thoughts of displeasure.

We had about two months to prepare, and by the state Mrs Treweek was in towards the end, it was obviously not at all that long. Mr Tucker maintained his composure throughout the rehearsals, and was his usual enthusiastic, energetic self.

There were many lovely match-ups on stage. Anna McCartney was the most fortunate contadine to get Mr Powell, a very handsome and eligible gondolier for her husband. And then there was Claire Wilson and Leon Beaton. Claire was undoubtedly the envy of all the contadine, matching up with the sweetest voiced fifth former on stage.

Performance of The Gondoliers dispelled any reservations we previously had about being involved in a nineteenth century 'light opera'. By the end we were all Gilbert and Sullivan converts (speaking for myself)

The performance also bought about many interesting happenings. John Pfeifer, one of the lead Gondoliers worked so hard for the first three nights that he had to try some of Mrs Buist's infamous sore throat remedy - honey and sherry. How well did it work Johnny? On the last night, after three very successful zooms across the stage of our purpose-built, human-powered water ski, John and Robert Thomson fell off most unceremoniously. This was due to a small but obviously significant loss of balance on Robert's part (even though he will insist that it was a design fault on Mr Pannett's behalf).

Overall, it was a great experience through not only performing in a great musical, but working together as a cast, and producing some great memories.

Sports Day 1998

On the morning of Wednesday 25 February 1998, the student body of James Hargest High School 'donned their voluminous sporting apparel' - as Sports Captain, Greg Brown is want to say and made their way to Surrey park Athletics Stadium. Where upon painted the four colours of the Hargest House rainbow they engaged in a variety of athletic pursuits. Worthy of special mention is the performance of that dyed in the wool Watsonian Mr R McCulloch in the non-champ 80 metres - despite his near disqualification for unicycling.

The seventh form excelled itself in drumming up fervent "housism" not least by the means of its eccentric attire - Thomas sporting lurid orange speedo's over stripey tights and Ben Gutsell getting into the swing of things, as Thomson House Captain, in scarlet Underdaks and lycra tights. Innovative headgear included wigs, Pak 'N' Save bags and ten-gallon hats painted red, white and blue.

The day was not without a little drama as the House Competition heated up. In spite of repeated warnings from the powers-that-be that flag poaching could result in gratuitous displays of violence, Gordon attempted to snaffle the Menzies flag. However, the valiant Head Boy flattened him, prompting tears and seriously injuring the would-be thief's ankle. Gordon's resultant departure in an ambulance comforted by Mrs Elder caused quite a stir.

Regardless of the debacle, the fierce competition on the track continued as the customary House piggy-back race was run.

To end the day were the House relay competitions won by Thomson by a respectable 100 metres. Menzies were pipped at the post for fourth by the staff team, due (of course) to a great deal of unsportsman-like conduct by many of the latter.

Final house standings ~ 1st Thomson
2nd Watson
3rd Menzies
4th Hamilton

Southern Comfort Ball 1998

For some it was easy. Most people had steady boyfriend's, looked gorgeous naturally and had great hair anyway. People started asking partners to the ball at the beginning of the year, four months away from the actual event. About two months from the ball girls were stressing over their dresses, hair and make up appointments and some still didn't know who to take.

There were many ideas about what theme our ball should have such as, Titanic, Under the Sea, Roman, Medieval and Star Wars. The ball committee finally decided on 'The Southern Comfort Garden Party'. The band, Southern Dixie, was hired, the hall was decorated and the 'ball' started rolling.

The seventh form art department set aside some school time and personal time to paint and build the set. Two pillars and a house in the background and not to forget the water fountain that many people crashed into (and my partner and I pulled the plug out of). Red, white and blue sheets festooned the walls and with sultry lights and tempting music the scene was set. The entrance was a gate way with ivy growing and pot plants and small trees everywhere, how could you not enjoy yourself? The Grand March started everything so that we could see each other (some of whom had completely transformed, so that they were almost unrecognisable) Many of the men had completely out done themselves in top hats, scarves and tails and not to forget the odd scottish kilt. The hall was a little cramped for space and many people lost partners during the Gay Gordon. Dancing with teachers including the Principal, Mr O'Connor was an experience never to be forgotten.

With the cramped space and people rushing around trying to line up in time for their photos, even though the photographers took breaks every few minutes to watch the rugby!, some people slipped in spilt drinks, and a dress fell part way down.

Supper was served by fair southern maidens a.k.a the Hargest Gold A Netball team. This consisted of savouries, wedges, a cheese board and chocolate covered grapes.

With sweet parting words from Head Boy and Girl, Sabin and Anna, we sang Auld Lang Syne, only to meet again in an hour at Quiet's '98.

'Carol Meninga Cup' 1998 Report

Traditional 'Carol Meninga Cup' (CMC) clashes of past years as I recall have been nothing less than hot-headed, fiery displays of hard-core, no holds barred Rugby League and this year's collar up encounter was by no means an exception.

After having made CMC history in '97 by being the first 6th form side to rob the cup from our 7th form opponents, the pressure then mounted on the '98 squadron of 20 players to deliver the goods and retain what was rightfully (and already) theirs.

As expected, early on in the 'cup week', very few of the words exchanges between the respective squads could have been described as amicable and it would be a lie to say that such immense tension was having a positive spinoff on the players classroom habits.

But with all the hype aside, the day finally arrived and as the 20 strapping young men marched out of the dressing room, there was an air of confidence (perhaps even over-confidence) among them. However after a brief warm-up and a few late words from match officials from a slightly disgruntled Mr Wood regarding the matches 'lunchtime' scheduled duration, the game was soon underway.

Not surprisingly (due to over-confidence and lack of communication) the first try scored was awarded to the equally pumped up 6th form side who began by throwing everything at us. But the wake up call served its purpose as we came away with a comprehensive victory (4 tries to 2)

With this overall result being a favourable one (despite what could have been labelled a slightly overrated clash), it meant that two victories from two CMC's makes the 1998 7th form, undisputedly the greatest and most successful side in the history of the JHHS 'Carol Meninga Cup'.

1998, The Year Of The Hall Party

Recipe.

Take one hall, add at least 150 people like us, add lots of music, a fair bit of funky dancing, generally some alcohol and a few bouncers. Generally most people will have a good time. The best hall parties were the earlier ones in most people's opinions. They began for some of us with the After Production Party '97. Certainly this was the first party ticket I had ever seen. Terrienne soon had a quiet little gathering to which a handful of our form went. Hall party fever had set in. This year some of the parties which people in our form went to are as follows:

Quiets '98 (It topped all parties and a good time was had by all)

Ben's Bye Bye Booze Up	Aurevoir Adeline
Austin Power's Love Bonanza	Melanie's 18th
Olav and Thomas's	Cherry Stock IV and V after parties
Alexe's Farewell and Peter's 18th	Boys High After Ball
Cameron's Farewell	Aimee's party
Mike's Farewell	Freak Frat
Nathie's Party	Riverton After Ball
Roxborough After Ball	Boys High 1st XV party
Adele's house parties most weekends	Amber's 2 parties
JHHS 1st XV party	Lachlan's party
Nick's Party	Emma's Party
Moonlight Rave	Simon's engagement party
Maria, Aimee and Aimee	Maria, Nic and Moo Cow
Maria's first party	Terzanne's Halloween Party
Verdon Chick's Halloween Party	Jonathan's Guy Fawkes party
Redmayne Road Party	Old Boys' Soccer break up
Julia's party	Mockquest After Party
Jamie and Jonathan's After Production Party '98

The majority of hall parties were held at Nith Street, a lot were held at Tisbury and some were held at Myross Bush Hall, Hawthorndale Hall and lots of other places. Some people chose to spend the weekend evenings at Lazars, Saints and Sinners, Players or the Lone Star. This is by no means the total list of all social functions of '98 but merely a quick look at a few of the parties and party places we enjoyed and remember well (in some cases).
